

Andy Boutle – Engagement Co Lead

Andy is Co-Lead for Engagement and is part of the executive team. Previously Andy was leading Communities in 2018 which is a core function of the Engagement arm of the Alliance and is made up of the BIM Regions, BIM4s and Special Interest Groups across the UK. Andy's focus, along with Pam Bhandal is to drive the Alliance's messaging and outreach to industry to help educate and guide those who are not yet fully engaged with BIM to help articulate the business case.

Andy is Head of BIM for Kier's Regional Building business. He is responsible for Kier's BIM strategy and implementation and works closely with specialist BIM resources, departments and leadership throughout the business to drive widespread BIM implementation within Kier. Andy is focused on ensuring the foundations of BIM Level 2 are properly in place, to build on the value proposition of improved digital delivery to clients, ensure structured information management and to help generate internal efficiencies.

Andy has over 17 years' experience in the construction industry, with a background in mechanical engineering, project management and CAD, working for both consultants and contractors.
